III. Participating in the CRMC and RI CRC Sea Grant Beach SAMP program

The Beach SAMP is bringing state, federal, municipal, academic and private sector interests together to create a state management plan with solid, practical guidance for communities adapting to short-term and long-term shoreline change. URI researchers are studying the project areas to understand how the coast has changed, what it may look like in the future, what infrastructure is at risk. The results of this research will help identify what policymaking needs to address now and plan for in the future.
